Honour (NHB Modern Plays) (Nick Hern Books)

Synopsis

An unsettling play about infidelity seen from the perspective of the three women involved: the wife, the lover and the daughter. George and Honor have been happily married for thirty-two years. She is a successful writer, he is a revered columnist. They have a perfect understanding of each other. Until a pushy young female journalist - on an assignment to 'profile' George - quite deliberately seeks to undermine that understanding. The fallout is dreadful - but beautifully and convincingly portrayed in all its painful consequences. 'Murray-Smith's considerable skill lies in charting the minute emotional shifts and the subtle power play between the four people... Superb' - Mail on Sunday 'Murray-Smith's writing is searching and droll, naturalistic and poetically honed' - Independent on Sunday 'An old story, but thanks to the quality of the writing and acting we share the characters' sense of sailing into uncharted waters... And there are some excellent comic touches... the piece deserves full credit for its honesty and dramatic grip' - Sunday Telegraph 'It's an intelligent, powerful, gripping piece' - The Times 'A really powerful new play. Joanna Murray-Smith is the most exciting Australian dramatist of her generation' - New Statesman

Customer Reviews

My friend Susan Sullivan was in this play. I went to California to see her in it and she was remarkable and amazing. Now I have the book to remember it by.

I performed in this, and it remains one of my top three all time favorite performances. Want to do it again. Great roles and writing.
