Customer Reviews

Another good one. Ben Hood rocks. This one starts with the murder of an aboriginal in the Pilbara region of Western Australia. Pilbara is barren, remote and a very inhospitable place. Its also loaded with iron ore and sometimes gold. The ore is mined at several area mines and transported to the coast at Port Hedland via railway. Jackson West is the murdered man. He worked for the Princess Mine owned by Peter and Angela Bode. Peter died and left it all to his much younger wife Angela. He effectively cut his children out of his will. Bodes two sons, from his first marriage were not pleased and took her to court. The will was iron clad and was upheld with Angela as the sole beneficiary. The sons want the mine and are willing to do anything to get it. They start with threats that lead to missing miners and murder. Angela decides she needs a bodyguard and she contacts

VIP and Rodney Reid. Rodney Reid the owner decides Ben Hood is the man for the job. Ben really doesn't want this job and reminds Rodney that he has two very good female operatives, either of whom could handle any job. Rodney isn't dissuaded because he wants Ben. Talking him into it takes a new turn when he shows Ben a picture of Angela Bode. A beautiful Angela Bode. So begins another great Ben Hood read. This one has Ben, Angela, her step daughter Alice, the two sons with a plan, a German Shepherd named Max, murder, kidnapping, local law enforcement, the return of a long gone step daughter, a mine that also has gold as well as iron ore, two murderers who take over the plan with an eye to making a fortune, a hit man and Ben Hood doing what he does best, solving everything.
