Customer Reviews

I used to love the Kindred books but lately I feel as though they are the same story, different names. This was so much like Kat's story... Twin kindred that don't get along and a girl riddled with guilt. Just once I would like to read a kindred book that wasn't full of "oh but what would people think of me, this is so wrong." So much of the story is full of self loathing it makes it difficult to enjoy despite the HEA we know is going to happen. The sex scenes are decent though it felt forced... the wording didn't seem to flow as well as her previous books. Will I continue to read the series? Probably, but this wasn't Anderson's best work.

Once again, a novel in the Kindred series has impressed me. Evangeline Anderson has well developed and well thought out characters that make the reader empathize, laugh and cry right along with them. Divided was fast paced and well written with some great twists that keep a person reading until the wee hours of the morning. We are treated to a fair mix of returning characters as well as new, some of which will make you want to pull your hair out! Like most of the Kindred books, we get a brief recap in the form of former characters chatting which helps catch the reader up (if you are like me and devoured the previous book in one sitting and it's been a while since you've read it.) I was really unsure how the plot would unfold with Far and Truth (our Twin Kindred protagonists) being separated at birth. I had this feeling it may turn out to be a bit hokey or forced but Evangeline's writing is solid and she came through with flying colors. The emotions are well written and it isn't hard to put yourself right there on the Mothership with these characters. Rebecca, as a former nun, is conflicted and torn between her morals and the two brothers she is fated to be with. But despite her inner turmoil, Far and Truth are at war with themselves having been separated at birth which never allowed them to bond as brothers. There were times when my heart was breaking for the two of them. The world of the Kindred continues to expand and grow. This is one of those novels that make me wish I could jump in and live there.

Evangeline Anderson is golden with the "Brides of Kindred" novels. Riveting, action packed tales of a wonderful group of barbarian like aliens who need human brides to mate with to keep their society going. From Beast like, Vampire like, Bonded Twins: all seek their soul mates. In return for keeping Earth safe from a Scourge of darkness, brides are taken by a world wide draft. If it's your time, you go. Period! When a bonding is in question and you think there may be no way to see it through, you wonder what next can go wrong...and here it is! A set of twin males separated at birth and raised by 2 very different worlds finds both wanting to mate with a very innocent woman unable to find a sexual bond with any man, let alone 2 who fight, verbally, non-stop. Each male wants her! But only by joining as a trio will these 3 lost lambs become a force equal to shut out an evil set to possess ANY unmated male of the Kindred, and join to defeat outside influences set against their bond. I LOVE these tales! Evangeline Anderson makes you believe in a wonderful world filled with marvelous stories overflowing with the magic of an alien race of men that NEED women...the sexually hot meetings, the love, action and growth of characters is mesmerizing! Join those of us that have found the Brides of Kindred! Divided is Book 10, and I love all of them!

Once again I got sucked into the Kindred world. Divided has to be by far the most emotional book of the series (at least it was for me since I cried about 4-5 times while reading) as well as one of the longest (yay!). Originally I was skeptical about starting the series in the first place - I wasn't a fan of sci fi but a good friend convinced me to give the series a try...so I did. And now waiting for each installment makes me anxious like some addict awaiting their next fix -- Divided was well worth the wait. Evangeline Anderson is a mastermind when it comes to creating not only characters with great chemistry but also has the ability to paint the Kindred world as if one is watching a movie. In this installment of the series, we follow Becca (a girl who nearly became a nun) as well as Twin Kindred, Truth and Far (whom were separated at birth and recently found each other). The twins aren't on the best of terms; due to their separation they were never able to form a proper bond which left them hating each other. Far was raised on Twin Moons - Twin Kindred home world, while Truth was raised on Pax - home world of Rai'ku; a race with animalistic nature and very strict rules. A run in with Becca after she accidentally eats bonding fruit cake at a wedding, forced the twins to work together in order to aid her in a rather embarrassing predicament. Each male wants Becca for himself and has no intention of sharing though it goes against the Twin Kindred way. Now Becca is forced to choose between the two males - but how can she? Her decision is put on a back burner when the Kindred Mothership is attacked by a dark force effecting only the Unmated Kindred Males and the trio are the only ones who can find the cure. Each character has their own demons of the past to deal with yet they have to work together in order to save the Unmated Kindred Males - can they do it or will the task be too difficult? Find out for yourself
